CENTENNIAL

Allegheny Mountains for the Union during the war, opened a corridor from the railroad south along Tygart's Valley, and started General George B. McClellan on his rise to military prominence.

Manassas, the first major battle of the war, already restaged on several occasions, will be marked by authentic reenactment, perhaps the most extensive of any to date. Francis F. Wilshin, Superintendent of the Manassas National Battlefield Park, and an active committee of businessmen from local Chamber of Commerce have held several meetings to discuss plans. The program worked out so far calls for not only a portrayal of the battle action, but for such colorful sidelights as a military ball.

The Governors of all of the 23 states represented in the battle of nearly a century ago will be asked to send 100-man contingents to take part in the reenactment. These, according to present plans, will be attired in the uniforms of the individual volunteer companies, some of which were extremely flashy and were identical even though worn by opposing units.

To accommodate the large crowds expected to visit the battlefield during the Centennial, the National Park Service has received authorization for the erection of a $65,000 addition to the present museum, to include an auditorium that will seat 150 persons. Two large electric maps showing the battle action of both the first and second engagements fought in that area will be provided.

The classic white wool coat is a beautiful way to welcome spring. The most interesting coats for the coming season are uncluttered, with much thought put on cut and drape rather than bits of trim.

Impressive services were held at the Mount Shiloh Baptist Church last Sunday morning. The pastor delivered a special new year's message. The choir rendered special music. At the close of the service a special appeal for the T. B. Seal association was made. The grand offering for the day was $100.23. All who attended the service enjoyed it. One member joined the church by letter.

The annual church meeting of the First Baptist Church was held last Saturday evening at 8 P. M. The church clerk and treasurer made their finicial report which was very pleasing to the body. The church extended a call to the Rev. Garland Thompson, of Lynchburg, as pastor through 1959 The newly elected pastor, Rev. Thompson, preached a wonderful sermon last Sunday morning from the subject "The Same Jesus." It was enjoyed by all. The public is cordially invited to worship at the First Baptist Church every second and fourth Sunday morning at 11:30 a. m.

Regular evening services were held at the Promise Land Baptist Church on Last Sunday at 8 P. M. The pastor delivered an inspiring message. Congregational singing added much to the service.

The public is cordially invited to attend the regular preaching service at the Galilee Baptist Church this Sunday at 11:30 a. m. Sunday School begins promptly at 10:30. Parents are urged to send their children to Sunday School.

Parents of the local Carver-Price P. T.-A. are reminded of the next meeting on Monday after the fourth Sunday in this month at 7:30. Business of importance will be discussed.

The following college students were committed from this column last week: Miss Laura Fleshman, of Bennet College, N. C.; Miss Juanita Hicks, James Gafford and Raymond Turner, Virginia Seminary, Lynchburg, Va.; Miss Sara Lipford, Boston, Mass.; Miss Celestine Chambers, St. Phillip Nursing School, Richmond, Va.; Miss Novella Hicks, St. Paul College, Lawrenceville, Va., and William Forbes, Virginia State College, Petersburg, Va.

I had ever seen. Several had to stoop down to get into the dining room. I noted that most of them slumped over as they walked, so as not to attract attention by their "Empire State Building" height. But they were so very well dressed, and so excelently mannered and so gentlemanly, that I couldn't wait to find out just who they were. It was the varsity basketball team of the University of Kentucky. Some think it is the top basketball team in America. I have never seen them play, but I can attest that they are a fine appearing set of charming young men, and all devotees of the University of Kentucky should be proud of them.

"Avis au Public: Faire de la bonne cousine demande un certain temps. Si on vous fait attendre, c'est pour mieux vous servir, et vous plaire."

That is what it said, and to the best of my recollection of college French, it means: Notice to the public: It takes a bit of time to prepare a good meal, and if you will have patience, we can serve you better and your dinner will be more pleasant."

Well sir, we are recently at the fabulous Antoine's Restaurant, ranked as one of the very best in America. I had been told that maybe the prices would be terrific, and to order lightly, just to be able to come away and say, "I have eaten at Antoine's!" Well, I like to travel first class, if at all, so we took a cab, and when the driver asked for directions, I said: "Antoine's, please." That would be 713-717 St. Louis Street, New Orleans. And so we come in and are a bit early for dinner, only 7:00 P. M., and the place is not too crowded. The spacious front dining room would seat several hundred, and has the set up for the waiters and hosts, and we are assigned to one of the 15 dining rooms available. Antoine's can serve up to 2,000, and can furnish a private dining room for two, or for 200. The old fashioned Welsbach gas mantles provide the only source of heat. The awesomeness of actually being at Antoine's eases its spell over you. The waiters have served a long apprenticeship — you must be a bus boy for ten years before even trying as a waiter. You must be able to speak many languages and must be a master at the art of cousine.

And so we are at our table. The waiter arrives, with an escort behind him, and whispers in French to his escort something which I took to mean, "follow along behind me." And we are handed the menus. Every word of the menu is in French...Antoine's has had only one menu for fifty years, whatever the meal or occasion. Well, we puzzle over our attempy French. I figure out that "Huitre en coquille a la Rockefeller (notre creation)" is the famous Oyster dish of Antoines. I ramble over the Potages, Poissons, Oeufs, Entrees, Legumes, Salades, Faux Mineraile, Fromages, etc, but then our waiter arrives and asks if he can be of service. He can. I decide that the smart thing to do is take his suggestions. And so he suggests Oysters a la Rockefeller. And he asks if he may not prepare a special salad for Mother Brightleaf, and that is okeh with her. And then would we like a steak, and he helps us decide just how it should be prepared, the sauces, etc. For bread there is the long Vienna loaf, and finally he has it all decided. They never write down an order: the waiter must remember your wishes. And, in less time than we had expected, the food begins to arrive. I have never seen anything like Antoine's Oysters a la Rockefeller. They are served in a shell on a hot bed, wrapped in a variety of sauces and covering material, the recipe for which is a secret. I stab one and then swallow it whole and immediately rise about two feet in the air: the hottest dish I ever tasted. After a glass of water, I settle down and learn how to eat this dish, and it is wonderful. And the rest of the meal arrives promptly, and everything is just different and better than most of us are used to. There is no dinner music. The business at Antoine's is eating, nothing to distract.

We pay the check, and it is only half of what I had expected: most reasonable.

We leave loaded with souvenirs, including a booklet listing the names of hundreds and hundreds of famous persons who have eaten at Antoine's: just about everyone of importance since 1840, when Antoine's was founded by Antoine Alciatore, who ran it until 1885, and turned it over to his son, Jules Alcistore, who in turn in 1930 passed it to the present proprietor, Roy Alciatore.

(Note: With my dish of Oysters a la Rockefeller, was a card stating that this was serving No. 1,513,479 of this specialty).

Mass Meeting Called on Va. School Problem

Premeasuring Of Crops Ready

Premeasurement of 1959 alloted acres of tobacco is now under way in Appomatox County.

County ASC Chairman, W. D. Hix, III, requests farmers who want this service on any of these crops to make application at the ASC County Office as quickly as possible, so that the premeasurement program may be coordinated with wheat performance to the maximum extent possible. "The sooner farmers file applications for premeasurment, the sooner our committee can plan premeasurement work. In order to do an orderly job we must know how much the workload will be and hire and train the necessary reporters to do the job," Mr. Hix said.

The chairman pointed out that there are certain definate advantages to a farmer in availing himself of ASC's service. By having the acreage determined in advance which is to be planted to an allotment crop, the farmer can confidently plant his full allotment without fear of overplanting, thus fully using but not wasting his time, labor, and fertilizer.

The ASC charges farmers for the premeasurement service the actual cost of doing the job, which varies between commodities. The rate for all types of tobacco is a minimum of $6.00 per farm or $2.00 per farm plus $1.50 for each acre or fraction thereof.

Mr. Hix stated that farmers can assist in helping reporters to do an orderly premeasurement job by having someone available to point out the fields that will be planted to the commodity to be premeasured and by having application ready at the county ASC office if they want the service performed.

FARM NEWS

J. A. Smith, County Agent

Preparation of income tax forms must be in the office of the District Director of Internal Revenue by February 15. An aid to help you complete your tax reports is a 64-pages tax guide which is available at the county agent's office.

No longer are farm records just helpful to the farm manager, but they are a necessity for tax purposes. One type that is quite good is that from your county agent's office, free.

Also, for those owning a great deal of farm machinery or buying cattle, there is available, a ten-year inventory record for thirty-five cents.

Tobacco Plant Beds

Producing strong, healthy, early plants is one of the most important steps in growing tobacco. The following five steps will help produce the kind of plants you will need:

1. Use fertilizer especially made for tobacco plant beds. Such fertilizer is practically chlorine-free. Do not use tobacco field fertilizers on your plant bed.

2. Use a 4-9-8 plant bed fertilizer. The 6-12-4 plant bed fertilizer has been deleted from the approved grade list and is not available.

3. On light sandy and sandy loam soils, use from 1-2 to 2 pounds of 4-9-8 per square yard. On heavier, more fertile soils, use 3-4 to 1 1-2 pounds per square yard.

4. Divide the fertilizer into two parts. Spread one part in one direction and the other in the opposite direction. This will give more uniform distribution.

5. Leave the bed as smooth as possible so that there will be no low spots where fertilizer and seed will settle.

CONCRETE EVIDENCE

HIT AND RUN?

Vincennes, Ind. — Police in this Indiana town got a report from a worried woman driver who said she found a pair of men's trousers trailling from the rear of her car.

The owner was soon found. Jack Todd said he had been on the way to the dry cleaners when the wind blew the garment out of his arms.

Available from the Game Commission, Richmond, For two dollars, the 220 page book "Wild Mammals of Virginia" by Handley and Patton describes in detail the habits and distribution of all of the States's wild animals.

This class is open to farmers in the area who wish to learn woodworking, metalworking, acetylene welding, and electric welding which they might apply to the care and repair of their farm machinery, or to the construction of labor saving devices for their farms. This class is conducted by instructors Everett Tibbs and Lewis Motley, and begins at 6:30 p. m.

The second class is the Evening Class which is conducted on Thursday nights, Topic for discussion on Thursday January 29th, is Keeping Farm Records. ### THE APPOMATTOX STORY

(One of a Series)

Gen. Stonewall Jackson did not believe in staff conferences. He kept his battle plans to himself. But Gen. Robert E. Lee had a great many staff conferences in order to get the advice of his officers. Lee's last staff conference was held late in the last night of the War, about midway up the slope on a line from the log cabin of Mrs. Mildred Alvis to the "Farewell Address" tree. There was no tent, no chairs, nor even camp-stools. Longstreet sat on a log, his arm in a sling, and smoking a pipe. Gordon arrived and then Fitz Lee. They sat on saddles or blankets. After Lee's reports, the decision was to try to make a flight of it on the 9th, and it was not until well into the final day that facts caused this decision to be reversed.
